

Workers and contractors receive safety awards

KUALA LUMPUR: ExxonMobil Exploration and Production Malaysia Inc (Emepmi) recently presented awards to its employees and contractors in recognition of their safety excellence last year.

Human Resources Minister Datuk Dr S Subramaniam handed out the awards.

"A safe and healthy workforce is a necessary foundation for economic growth and critical to achieving ExxonMobil's business success wherever we operate," said ExxonMobil Subsidiaries in Malaysia chairman Hugh Thompson.

"Our commitment to safety, health and environmental excellence is embedded into our business, and is part of our activities and operations 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

"We conduct every work activity with the goal of zero incidents, in line with our safety vision of 'Nobody Gets Hurt'.

"Today's awards are given to recognise employees' and contractors' efforts in maintaining ExxonMobil's high safety and quality standards. Through our shared dedication and focus on safety, I am convinced that we will continue to achieve injury-free worksites," Thompson said.

Four worksites and work groups — Tapis D/Pump Platform, Irong Barat A Platform, Kemaman Supply Base and the Centralised Maintenance

Group — received the Hurt Free Award because none of their employees and contractors suffered injuries last year.

Twelve employees and contractor personnel were given the Chairman's Safety Award for their leadership and contributions towards safety-related performance.

A total of 48 contractor companies were recognised for their safety achievements.

Three contractors — Barmada McDermott Sdn Bhd, Dimension Bid (M) Sdn Bhd and Jasa Merin (M) Sdn Bhd — received the Gold Award for completing between 100,000 and 300,000 work hours without injuries last year.

These contractors were involved in offshore installation, well intervention services, and supply vessel logistics for Emepmi's offshore facilities.

Another 45 contractor companies which completed below 100,000 work hours of injury-free operations received Recognition Awards.

Also present was Department of Occupational Safety and Health director-general Datuk Johari Basri.
